

Contents

List of abbreviations 7

Introduction 9

1 Theoretical background – measurement of global value chains 12

1.1 Transnational corporations and fragmentation of the production 12

1.2 Definition and characteristics of GVCs..... 13

1.3 Drivers of participation in GVC 19

1.3.1 Factor endowment 21

1.3.2 Market size 24

1.3.3 Geography 24

1.3.4 Institutions 25

1.4 Strategies and governance of the GVCs..... 25

1.5 GVCs and trade in value added principles..... 32

2 Recent trends in GVCs..... 39

2.1 Impact of COVID-19 on GVCs 39

2.1.1 GVCs in the pre-pandemic era 39

2.1.2 Direct and indirect impact of the pandemic on GVCs..... 40

2.1.3 Transport and distribution disruptions 40

2.1.4 Production disruptions 42

2.1.5 Ambiguous impact of anti-pandemic measures on different sectors..... 43

2.1.6 Prospects of reshoring activities 45

2.1.7 Opportunities 46

2.2 Innovation in and innovation-driven transformation of global value chains – implications for the Visegrad countries..... 47

2.2.1 Increased knowledge- and innovation-intensities of GVC activities 49

2.2.2 New patterns of innovation within GVCs..... 52

2.2.3 Implications 52

2.3 Development and current status of GVCs participation within V-4 53

2.3.1 Trade relations between V-4 countries 53

2.3.2 The V-4 participation in global value chains 56

2.3.3 The structure of GVC participation of V-4 countries 60

3 Characteristics of the automotive sector in V-4 countries 64

3.1 Czechia 65

3.1.1 Position in the EU and world production 65

3.1.2 Economic footprint 66

3.1.3 Position within GVCs 69

3.2 Hungary..... 72

3.2.1 Main features of the automotive sector..... 72

3.2.2 Challenges for Hungarian firms 74

3.2.3 Focus on battery plants 76

3.2.4 Experiences of interviews 77

3.3 Poland..... 81

3.3.1 Transnational corporations and domestic companies in the Polish automotive industry 81

3.3.2 Automotive production in Poland..... 83

3.4 Slovakia..... 85

3.4.1 The importance of the automotive industry for the Slovak economy 85

3.4.2 Global value chains and value added in the Slovak automotive industry 88

3.4.3 Automotive industry supply network of Slovakia and its specifics 91

3.4.4	Supplier structure integration	91
4	Recent changes in GVCs in the automotive sector in V-4 countries – case studies	95
4.1	Czechia	95
4.1.1	Increasing the value by upgrading within GVCs	95
4.1.2	Electromobility in Europe – step by step	96
4.1.3	The regulatory framework	98
4.1.4	Product innovation under challenging circumstances	100
4.1.5	Targeting investments to increase the value added and competitiveness globally	101
4.2	Hungary	103
4.2.1	Upgrading by domestic-owned automotive companies: The role of business development and quality certificates – the case of Tom-Ferr Plc	103
4.2.2	Gearwheel Factory	106
4.2.3	Effects of COVID-19 – Continental Automotive Hungary	109
4.2.4	Schwarz Müller Vehicle Construction and Trading Ltd	110
4.2.5	Private Hungarian owned automotive Tier 1 company	112
4.2.6	Bus manufacturer: expanding the product mix and upgrading	113
4.3	Poland	116
4.3.1	Can Chinese intermediaries be replaced by the components produced in Poland and other Visegrad countries?	116
4.3.2	What does the statistical data tell us about changes in GVC during a pandemic? – some insights on misleading assumptions	119
4.4	Slovakia	123
4.4.1	Upgrading Slovak value added via Industry 4.0 and innovations	123
4.4.2	Trends and opportunities for value added growth in the automotive industry	124
4.4.3	Current trends in the automotive industry	126
4.4.4	Chasing up the value added during the pandemic era. PSA Group Slovakia	128
5	Conclusions and policy recommendations	148
5.1	Conclusions	148
5.2	Policy recommendations	156
	List of tables and figures	161
	References	163